

CC&V Celebrates 4 Million Ounce Production

The first gold from CC&V's Cresson Project was poured in 1995. Notable milestones followed, reaching 1 million ounces in 2000, 2 million in 2004 and 3 million in 2007. The production milestone of 4 million ounces was accomplished in 2011.

On August 13, friends and family of CC&V joined us for a day of celebration for this landmark. Ron Largent, Ray DuBois and Victor Mayor Buck Hakes welcomed nearly 300 people to Victor for the event. Attendees for the day included State and local elected officials, representatives of regulatory agencies, local friends of the operation, and employees with their families. With such an overwhelming response to our invitation, the visitors arrived in two waves, with first group arriving at the Victor Elks for breakfast, and the second group later in the day for lunch.

Each area of the mine prepared display boards for viewing at the Elks. All of the visitors learned more about the operations and our day to day activities. A gold dore` button was also displayed at the Elks, guarded by the Victor Police Department. All of the visitors enjoyed having their photo taken with the button. Then everyone loaded onto busses for the special opportunity of viewing a gold pour, and bus tour of the site.

There are so many people to thank for making this event come together. Some helped in other ways, and we are very thankful. Forgive us if your name doesn't make the list, we are sincerely grateful nevertheless.

The refinery crew gets special thanks for being there all day on a Saturday and pulling off 6 pours for the tours, Shawn

Tomlinson, Henry Fenn, Dwight Fenn, Getta Flourquist, and Steve Newton. Site and ADR tours were handled by Andy Orser, Steven Grenfell, Timm Comer, Mark Vanoni, Mike Ellis, Curtis Adams, Dan Wendell, Mike Jahraus, Doug White and Larry Newcomer. Outlying parking was manned by Clint Schaefer, Chuck Harris, and Jeremiah Warwick. Sue Greve drove the tour van to get people back and forth. Brent Kuhn directed traffic in front of the Elks, and kept people away from the gap in pavement in front of the Elks! Check in was handled by the Accounting and Environmental groups, Samantha Zoon, Nathan Kloz, Shelby Wayland, Robin Sullivan, Kim Woodward, Ann Bruhn, Penny Roberts and Margo West. Brittany Grenfell was stationed at the top of the stairs at the Elks to give general information. Danny Kite helped Timm Comer find the Exploration Display, large golden boxes representing the volume of 4 million ounces of gold. Some of the displays were a group effort, with no credit given, but others were completed by Denny Deemer, Sam Beckworth, Don Wells, Gladys Wells, Nancy Adams, Jeff Roberts, and Mike Ellis. Invitations and RSVP lists were accomplished through the Denver Office and Marie Patterson. Several folks were just there generally to assist in planning, set up, and getting through the day, including: Kevin Riley, Amber Vanoni, Terry Rubin, Greg Gibson, Delores Rebelez, Marc Tidquist, and Greg Winkler.

Congratulations CC&V!
